When Esther Stiles' husband passes away unexpectedly, she finds no solace from the very people who should help her in her hour of need — her own family. They never wanted her to marry him, he was simply not good enough for their society daughter.

With nothing left for her in New York City, Esther agrees to marry small-time businessman, Leonard Clarke of Eagle Mountain, Colorado.

Eager to meet her future husband and start her life afresh, Esther sets off to travel to her new hometown, but even the journey is not without its mishaps when bandits raid the train, taking with them most of her money.

They would have taken her virtue too, had it not been for handsome stranger, Levi Foster, coming to her rescue.

Esther is intrigued by the enigmatic Levi but pushes all thoughts of him to the back of her mind. She is an engaged woman after all.

Can Esther forget about Levi, especially when she receives some devastating news regarding Leonard?

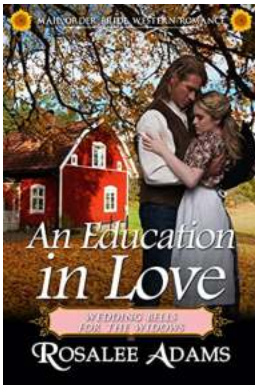

Will Levi be able to carry out the secret task he has been charged with completing, even when Esther's image continually crowds his thoughts, putting them all in danger?
