The Best and Worst Day of Molly's Life

It was a cool, crisp October day and Molly was excited to explore outside while soaking up the fall weather. Molly was an adventurous and clever nine year old who loved spending her free time outside in the fresh air. She especially loved the fall because of the beautiful leaves, festive decorations, and exciting fall activities. She loved helping her dad rake a giant pile of colorful fall leaves so she could leap in the air and land on the soft pile. Crunch! She loved the crackling autumn leaves. She also loved going to the orchard, climbing high up in the trees and picking delicious red apples from the highest branches. Molly lived in a small town with rolling hills set in the countryside. Her neighborhood was quite beautiful. Behind her house was a vast forest where she loved to explore and play. She scarfed down her gooey grilled cheese sandwich, quickly headed out the door, and skipped into the forest to play for the afternoon.

The woods felt vast, yet peaceful to Molly. She sat under her favorite tree and watched the creek water slowly trickle by. Whoosh! A gust of wind blew by, and several leaves danced in the air like clouds floating in the sky. She leaned against the tree trunk with a huge smile on her face. She decided to go exploring, hoping to see animals. She walked quickly through the woods noticing so many interesting things. She decided it would be really fun to create a fort. First, she had to find the perfect location. She walked, and walked, and walked until she saw a great spot under the most beautiful oak tree. She gathered rocks, sticks, and leaves and began building. She was so focused on her fort and worked on it for hours. All the sudden, she looked up and noticed it had gotten dark. Very dark.
