In Germany, children eagerly await St. Nicholas Day on December 6th. According to legend, St. Nicholas visits homes during the night and fills the shoes of well-behaved children with sweets and small toys. Kids polish their shoes and place them outside their bedroom doors, eagerly anticipating the surprises that St. Nicholas will bring. This sweet tradition never fails to bring smiles to children's faces!

2. Posada Navideña (Mexico)

Mexico celebrates the nine-day Posada Navideña from December 16th to 24th. This tradition commemorates the journey of Mary and Joseph looking for a place to stay before the birth of Jesus. Children dress as angels and shepherds, carrying candles and singing songs as they reenact the journey throughout their neighborhoods. This festive celebration concludes with a delicious feast and piñatas filled with candies and toys.

3. Hanukkah (Jewish)

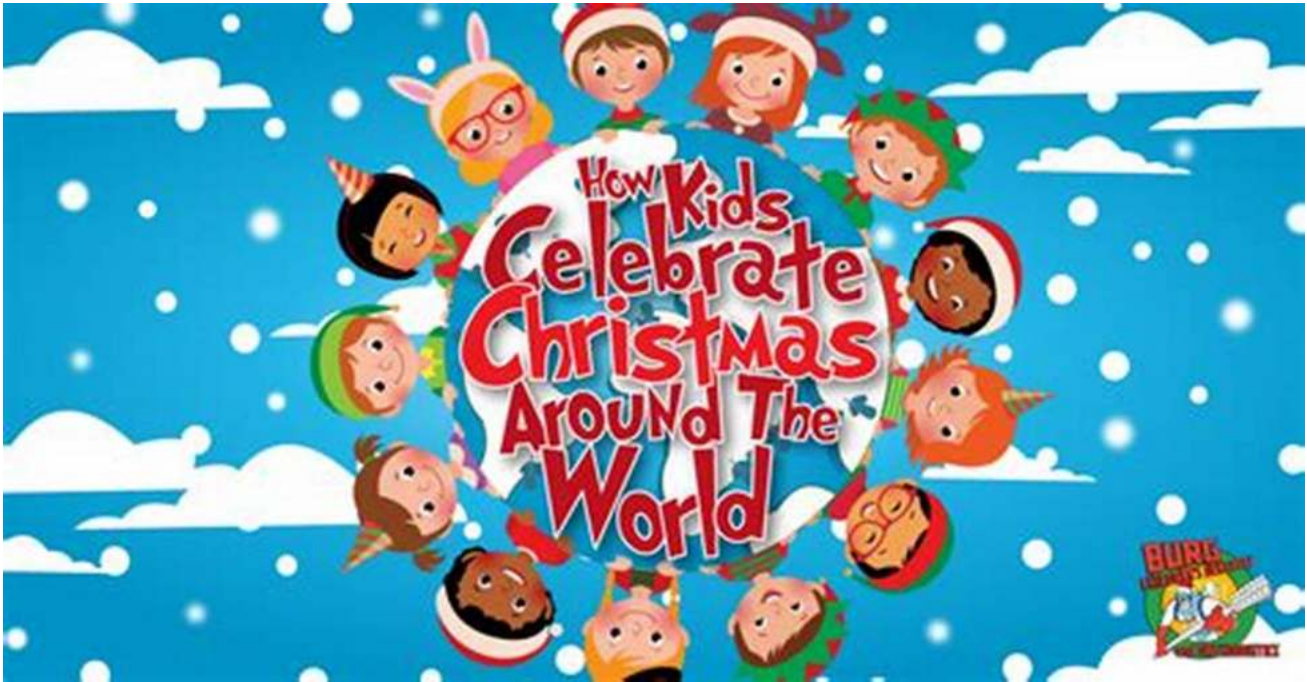

Hanukkah, also known as the Festival of Lights, is celebrated by Jewish communities worldwide. Lasting for eight nights during December, the holiday commemorates the miracle of oil lasting for eight days in the ancient Jewish Temple. Children actively participate in lighting the menorah, playing the dreidel game, and receiving small gifts or chocolate coins (gelt). Festive foods such as potato latkes and sufganiyot (jelly-filled doughnuts) add to the merriment.

4. Tomte's Christmas (Sweden)

In Sweden, children eagerly await the arrival of Tomte, a mythical creature similar to a gnome, during Christmas. According to Swedish folklore, Tomte looks after the welfare of the family and their animals. Children often leave a bowl of porridge for Tomte to express gratitude and hope for his protection. On Christmas Eve, families gather for a festive feast and exchange gifts, and children excitedly search for presents hidden by Tomte.

5. Christmas Around the World

Christmas is celebrated in various ways around the world, and children play a crucial role in making this holiday special. From visiting Santa Claus at shopping malls to leaving out stockings for small gifts, children immerse themselves in the festive spirit. Decorating Christmas trees, singing carols, and enjoying special meals are cherished traditions. Each country adds its unique touch to Christmas celebrations, creating a tapestry of diverse customs that children love to explore.
