In the current fast-paced, hectic life, many people have lost their faith. They believe that life is to enjoy and satisfy material needs because death is the end. There is no God or any supernatural power. Not long ago, a major newspaper in the United States declared: "God is dead." The author of the article openly challenged people to come up with proof that God was alive. Of course, that article created a very hot debate. An astronomer at the Palomar research center also said: "I have used the most advanced telescopes, which can observe stars millions of light-years away from the earth without seeing Heaven or God. Where do you live?" The extravagance of experimental science goes more and more to the point of excess, challenging all things.
