

Exposed: The Shocking Truth Behind Special Forces Operations Denied By The Authorities From Vietnam To The War On Terror

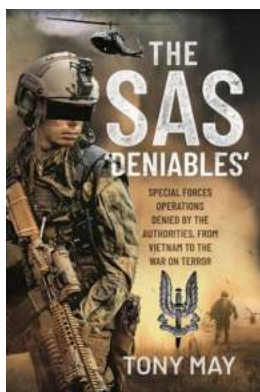

Throughout history, Special Forces operations have played a pivotal role in wars and conflicts around the world. These elite and highly trained soldiers are often called upon to carry out covert missions that require a level of expertise and skill beyond that of regular troops. However, what if there was a dark secret hiding behind these operations? What if the authorities denied their existence, leaving the public in the dark about what truly happens in the shadows? In this article, we will uncover the shocking truth about Special Forces operations that have been denied by the authorities, from Vietnam to the War on Terror.

1. Vietnam War: Phoenix Program

The Vietnam War was a brutal and bloody conflict that spanned over two decades. One of the most controversial aspects of this war was the Phoenix Program, a covert operation carried out by the United States. This secretive program aimed to identify and eliminate members of the Viet Cong, the communist guerrilla forces in Vietnam. The authorities denied the existence of this program for many years, but evidence eventually emerged, revealing the extent of its operations and the atrocities committed.

Under the Phoenix Program, Special Forces operatives were granted the authority to interrogate and assassinate suspected Viet Cong members. Thousands of individuals were targeted and killed, leading to accusations of human rights violations and war crimes. The authorities, fearing public backlash and political fallout, vehemently denied the existence of this program, leaving the public unaware of the true nature of the conflict.

2. Cold War: Operation Gladio

The Cold War was a period of intense geopolitical tension between the United States and the Soviet Union. During this time, a secret organization known as Operation Gladio was established by NATO. Its primary objective was to create a clandestine network of stay-behind agents who would resist potential Soviet invasions in Europe. However, the authorities vehemently denied the existence of such an operation.

Operation Gladio involved training and equipping these stay-behind agents, who were tasked with conducting covert operations against Soviet forces in the event of an invasion. This included acts of sabotage, espionage, and guerrilla warfare. These activities were denied by the authorities, who feared that acknowledging them would escalate tensions with the Soviet Union.

3. War on Terror: Extraordinary Rendition

The War on Terror, which began after the September 11 attacks, saw the rise of another denied Special Forces operation known as extraordinary rendition. This controversial program involved the transfer of suspected terrorists to secret detention facilities in other countries, where they could be interrogated without the constraints of U.S. law.

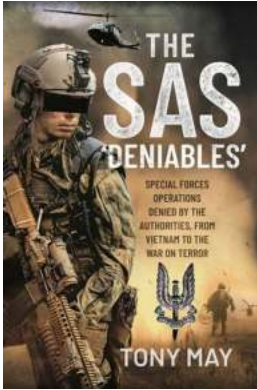

Special Forces operatives played a crucial role in capturing these individuals and transporting them to undisclosed locations. However, the authorities denied any involvement in these operations, leaving the public unaware of the extent to which human rights were being violated in the name of national security.

Special Forces operations have always been shrouded in secrecy, and many of them have been denied by the authorities. From the Phoenix Program in Vietnam to Operation Gladio during the Cold War and extraordinary rendition in the War on Terror, these covert operations have caused controversy and raised questions about government transparency.

It is important for the public to be aware of these denied Special Forces operations, as they shed light on the ethical and moral dilemmas faced by our governments. By examining these historical events, we can strive for a more open and accountable society, where the actions of our Special Forces are subject to proper oversight and scrutiny.

As the saying goes, "knowledge is power." Let us be informed, so we can demand justice, transparency, and responsible use of elite military units in the future.

During the 10,000-day Vietnam war Australia had agreed with the United States to have a team of Australian Army Special Air Services (SAS) soldiers conduct covert missions into Cambodia. The SAS soldiers would be bivouacked in Thailand.

With their names changed for security and personal safety reasons, this is a dramatized story of events that actually happened involving a small band of Australian Special Air Service trained specialists involved in covert intelligence activities who were co-opted into the Defence Intelligence Organisation (DIO) repertoire of Plausibly Deniable assets deployed worldwide into the shadows of political indulgence in locations where Australian forces should not be seen or heard.

These Australian SAS Covert operations undertaken are incidents that have never before been exposed and include cross-sovereign-border infiltrations into Cambodia and the daily operations of the elimination of Viet Cong munition dumps. Also revealed are an unauthorized fatal attack by United States Army helicopters on SAS warriors; the rescue of French tourists kidnapped by Muslim terrorists in Mindanao, Philippines, and Operation Eye of the Storm into Northern Kuwait/Eastern Iraq evolving into Desert Storm.

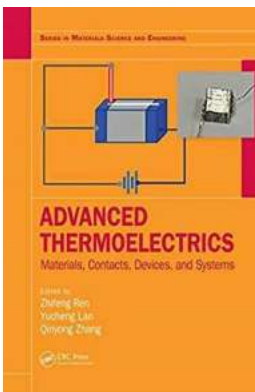

As revealed these covert operations included offshore intervention of East Timorese Fretilin Terrorists sabotaging Australian offshore Exploration and Oil Drilling activities in the Timor Sea; Back Door into Hell during the Somalia conflict, plus covert black ops elimination of Muslim Jihadist activities on homeland soil assisted by Israeli intelligence.

This astounding exposé opens the closed door behind which governments operate to deal quietly with situations they prefer not to mention.
