Violence and abuse in teen dating is more common than we want to think...

"In my heart I believed that I wasn't good enough for anyone else and that I couldn't get anyone else who would put up with me. So, I accepted the relationship and all of the consequences that it brought. I even protected him and stuck with him because I thought that I was the cause of everything. Feeling at fault became a normal feeling for me and I blamed everything that went wrong in the relationship on myself. No matter how bad I could have been, there is absolutely no excuse for mental and physical abuse. The fear that my boyfriend created stopped me from getting help and stopped me from confiding in others."

WHAT READERS ARE SAYING:

This is an important story for every teen and everyone with a teen in their life, and the book not only warns but offers help. We are grateful to Danielle Joy Linhart for writing her story so other young girls may avoid such abuse.

This was a surprisingly great book that I purchased for my daughter. She isn't in an abusive relationship but now she will know what to look for and now knows the signs. My daughter loved the book and enjoyed reading the book. She wants to spread the word and wants to stop the abuse against teenage girls in abusive relationships. I would highly recommend this book to anyone in an abusive relationship or those who want to be taught about an abusive relationship. It was an overall good read as well.

I am glad that I read this book for I feel I have a better outlook on teenage girls in abusive relationships and why they stay in them. I never understood why? Why do those girls stay in those kinds of relationships? And this book made it so perfectly clear, but not only that this is a great tool to help those in need in the middle of an abusive relationship. I feel that Mom should get this for their teenage girls in High School to read as a tool as well. I give this 5 Stars.

I read this book in about an hour and was transfixed by it. Having never been in an abusive relationship as a teenager, I was amazed how deep this problem goes. I now know why young girls feel there is no way out. If someone downgrades you enough, you believe it. And believe you deserve the abuse. Thank God for caring parents and friends of this young lady. They helped her realize her true worth. Mom's are not your enemy, they love you no matter what!!!! Friends see things that you don't think they see. Best of love and luck to you Danielle Joy, what a beautiful name!!!
