She's a boisterous, curvaceous, full of life woman looking to be accepted for the kind soul she really is. He's the local blacksmith – a big bear of a man and a loner, but with a heart of gold. When Belle Chadwick meets the irresistible Magnus Eriksen, sparks fly and who knows what's will happen next!

When Belle Chadwick and her widowed friends, see a matrimonial newspaper advertising for mail order brides, no matter what age, shape or disposition, they seize the chance of a new life in the small town of High View, Montana.

The Civil War may have ended in 1865 but it has left them destitute and penniless, without a man to love and care for them.

Leaving their home in Chancer Creek, South Carolina they travel to the rapidly growing mountain town of High View with hopes of finding the perfect man to love and marry.

Belle doubts that she will appeal to any man, being that she is outspoken, voluptuous, curvaceous and with her larger-than-life character.

With her blacksmithing knowledge and brawny strength, she can hand wrestle any man under the table, intimidating the local men and putting paid to any chance of romance.

But when local blacksmith, Magnus Eriksen, a big bear of a man, returns to High Valley, has Belle finally found her perfect match?

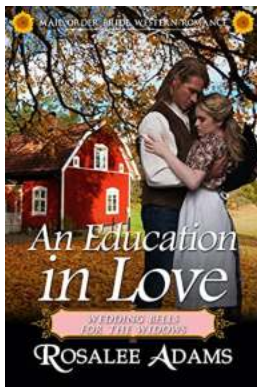

Or will her blunt honesty scare him away too?
