Dorothy Knight is looking forward to the Christmas season, after all, why wouldn't she? She is in love with her beau, Matthew Killingham.

Even though he is unaware, he is the father of her unborn child. They are planning on announcing their betrothal.

Sure, maybe they got the order of things a little mixed up, but when her parents hear there is a grandchild to look forward to, they'll be happy, right?

Dorothy is distraught when she tries to give Matthew his Christmas gift, only to find him in a compromising situation with her best friend, Sarah.

Heartbroken, and with no support from her parents, Dorothy sets off for Rattlecreek Falls, Nevada to marry rancher, James Washington.

When Dorothy arrives, her first impression of James is not at all what she expected, as the bullets start to whizz past her. Who is this man, and how on earth can she marry him?

Can Dorothy see past her prejudice and see James for who he really is?

Will James be able to forgive her deceit?

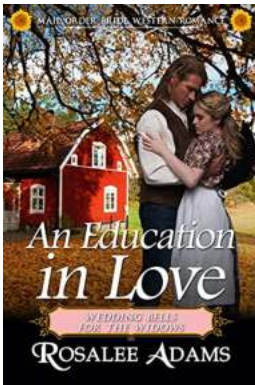

Then, and only then, will they be able to make a new life for themselves...
