During a night in the snow, you are far away from the hustle and bustle of the city, providing an unparalleled opportunity for stargazing. The absence of light pollution allows the stars to shine brightly, creating a celestial symphony that will fill you with wonder. Gaze up at the night sky, identify constellations, and make a wish upon a shooting star – the possibilities are endless.

Spending a night in the snow is not just about tranquility; it's also about adventure and fun-filled activities. In 1856 the Reverend Edmund Donald Carr was overtaken by a blizzard on his way to an evening service. He battled the elements for 22 hours with nothing by his bible and his dead horse, whose body sheltered him while he slept. Snow blind and half dead, Carr survived and wrote his experience in a first person narrative, A Night in the Snow.

As part of our mission to publish great works of literary fiction and nonfiction, Sheba Blake Publishing Corp. is extremely dedicated to bringing to the forefront the amazing works of long dead and truly talented authors.
