"Huffin' Hedgehogs" is a true story about our garden and the creatures that regularly visit it. The tale explains how we have attracted more wildlife and the difficulties we have encountered when trying to make the garden more hedgehog friendly. I describe the hog behaviour we have watched over the years. Their activities have given us hours of pleasure.

We were concerned that much of our good work had been undermined recently by a team of Countryside Rangers. They tore out a large area of hedgerow, laden with berries, which ran behind our property. However, we continue to benefit from providing a little oasis for the local wildlife.
