The Daring Mission

On June 6, 1944, as part of the Allied invasion of Normandy, a select group of United States Army Rangers were assigned the daunting task of scaling the cliffs of Pointe Du Hoc. Their mission was to neutralize the German artillery that threatened the success of the entire invasion.

The cliffs, which rose over 30 meters from the water, were believed to be impassable. But these fearless Rangers were determined to prove otherwise.

The Rangers

Selected from the best soldiers of the existing Ranger battalions, these brave men underwent intensive training for months. They were trained in various climbing techniques, demolition, and live-fire exercises to prepare them for the mission that lay ahead.

The Boys of Pointe Du Hoc, led by Lieutenant Colonel James E. Rudder, were about to face an enemy that outnumbered them greatly. However, their courage, determination, and unwavering spirit fueled their relentless pursuit of victory.

The Assault

Under a hail of German gunfire, the Rangers stormed the heavily fortified cliffs. Using ropes, ladders, and sheer willpower, they climbed the treacherous terrain while dodging bullets and grenades.

The battle was fierce, and casualties were high, but the Rangers pressed on. Inch by inch, they fought their way to the top, eliminating enemy soldiers and capturing key positions.

The Victory

After hours of intense combat, the Rangers finally reached their objective. They discovered that the German artillery had been moved, but that did not diminish their achievement.

The Boys of Pointe Du Hoc had successfully diverted enemy forces, preventing them from attacking the Allied landing forces on Omaha and Utah beaches. Their bravery and sacrifice ensured the success of the D-Day invasion.

An epic World War II story of valor, sacrifice, and the Rangers who led the way to victory in Europe

It is said that the right man in the right place at the right time can make the difference between victory and defeat. This is the dramatic story of sixty-eight soldiers of the U.S. Army's 2nd Ranger Battalion, D Company -- Dog Company -- who made that difference, time and again.

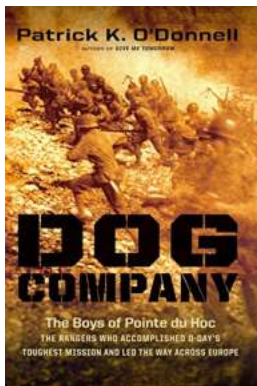

From D-Day, when German guns atop Pointe du Hoc threatened the Allied landings and the men of Dog Company scaled the ninety-foot cliffs to destroy them; to the thickly forested slopes of Hill 400, in Germany's HÃ¼ Forest, where the Rangers launched a desperate bayonet charge across an open field, captured the crucial hill, and held it against all odds. In each battle, the men of Dog Company made the difference.

Dog Company is their unforgettable story -- thoroughly researched and vividly told by acclaimed combat historian Patrick K. O'Donnell -- a story of extraordinary bravery, courage, and determination. America had many heroes in World War II, but few can say that, but for them, the course of the war may have been very different. The right men, in the right place, at the right time -- Dog Company.
