“The face of the enemy comes in many forms”

Gamel, once an orphan of the hold, now an adopted sibling of the hold’s Lady Bella and Lord Goodwin, is charged with responsibility of hold defense. This duty along with his obligation to raise the obstinate and destructive stud colt Demon falls on his 16 year old shoulders.

Although Serenity Valley has enjoyed almost two years of peace after the failed assassin attack at festival, De Ferrier Hold continues to bolster its defenses while personal relationships blossom and vows are taken.

Gamel’s small band of warriors known as the forest people gains two more members, when two broken soldiers return from the crusades looking for redemption and a place to call home. As part of his hold defense plan, Gamel’s group seeks passage through the Enola Mountains, where he encounters the unique and extremely dangerous inhabitants.

Gamel learns another important lesson when an unforeseen threat penetrates the hold defenses which may very well spell the end for everyone he knows, unless he can act fast enough to save the hold.
